A free newborn observation visit for your family

Dear parents and families,

The first months with a new baby are a time of getting to know each other. New parents often wonder: What is my baby trying to tell me? Why is she crying? What helps him settle? At ConnectEd Kids Therapy Center, we would love to help you discover the answers, one baby at a time.

A free observation visit for newborn families

I am a licensed practitioner at ConnectEd Kids Therapy Center, currently training in the NBO. The Newborn Behavioral Observations (NBO) is a gentle, relationship-building way of getting to know your baby together with you, developed at the Brazelton Institute, Boston Children's Hospital. I am working toward my NBO certification, and I would be grateful to share a free visit with your family.

What you may gain

- Meet your baby's personality: see what your baby likes, how your baby calms, and how your baby says "I need a break."
- Learn your baby's cues: sleepy, hungry, ready to play, or overwhelmed.
- Notice your baby's strengths, and celebrate what you are already doing well.
- Get ideas that fit your baby: for soothing, sleep, feeding cues, positioning, and play.
- Feel more confident as a parent, with someone cheering you on and no judgment.
- Take home a Parent Summary written "in your baby's voice" as a keepsake.
- Ask your questions in a relaxed, one-to-one setting.

What it costs

Nothing. There are no fees, no hidden charges, and no purchase needed.

What it is, and is not

It is a calm, strengths-based visit with your baby (from birth to about 3 months), with you or another family member present throughout. It is not a test, a medical examination, or a diagnosis, and it does not replace your baby's doctor. You may stop at any time, and your baby's comfort comes first.

Your privacy and your choices

Everything is explained in writing before we begin. Recording is optional and separate: you can say no and still take part. What I share with my certification mentor carries only your baby's first initial and age, never names or contact details.

How to say yes

Send us a message with your baby's age and a good time to talk. We will answer your questions first, and you can decide after.
