What is the NBO?

The Newborn Behavioral Observations (NBO) system was developed by Dr. J. Kevin Nugent and colleagues at the Brazelton Institute, Boston Children's Hospital. It is a set of 18 gentle observations done with the parents, from birth to about three months of age. The goal is to strengthen the relationship between baby and parents by helping parents see their baby's abilities, preferences, and needs in the moment.

The NBO follows a simple idea: Stop, Look, Listen. Stop and focus on the baby. Look at the baby. Listen to the family's story.

What do we look at?

We use four areas, known as AMOR, and describe them in everyday words:

Area	In everyday words	What we notice
Autonomic	How your baby's body copes	Skin color, breathing, tremors, startles, hiccups
Motor	How your baby moves	Muscle tone, reflexes (rooting, sucking, grasp), pull-to-sit, crawling, activity
Organization of state	How your baby moves between sleep, awake, and crying	Sleeping through light and sound, crying, being soothed, smooth changes in state
Responsiveness	How your baby connects with the world	Looking at faces, turning to voices and sounds, following a red ball

Benefits for your family

- You get to know your baby's unique personality.
- You learn how your baby communicates: what calms, what overwhelms, and what delights.
- You see your baby's strengths, and you hear what you are already doing well.
- You receive ideas for soothing, sleep, feeding cues, positioning, and play that fit your baby.
- You can build confidence and connection in the early weeks.
- You take home a Parent Summary written in your baby's voice.

- It is free, relaxed, and judgment-free, with time for your questions.

How the visit works

1. Welcome and settle in. We choose a comfortable spot with soft light, and I explain what we will do.
2. Quiet watching. We first observe your baby together.
3. Gentle observations. Light and sound while baby sleeps, then movement, reflexes, looking, listening, crying, and comforting. You are invited to help (for example, by calling your baby's name).
4. Talking together. We discuss what your baby showed us and what you noticed.
5. Parent Summary. We fill it out together, and you keep the original.

Nothing we do is painful. Most babies fuss or cry at some point; we will comfort your baby together, and we pause or stop whenever you or your baby need it.

What this program is not

- It is not a test, an evaluation, or a diagnosis.
- It is not medical advice or a replacement for your baby's doctor.
- It is not a class or a course. It is a one-to-one observation visit with you and your baby.

About your practitioner

Your visit is led by a licensed practitioner at ConnectEd Kids Therapy Center who is training in the NBO and working toward NBO certification with the guidance of a certification mentor. These free visits are part of that training, which is why they are free and why your participation is so appreciated.

How we protect your family

- Written consent is explained in a language you understand before the visit.
- Your name and contact details are kept private by ConnectEd Kids Therapy Center. Anything shared for certification carries only your baby's first initial and age.
- Recording is optional and separate. You can withdraw consent at any time and ask for your information to be deleted.

How to join

1. Send us a message with your baby's age and a good time to talk.
2. We answer your questions and send the information sheet and checklist.
3. We schedule the visit and go over the consent forms together.
4. We hold the visit.
5. We share your Parent Summary and invite your feedback.
